

IPHONE 9: HANDS-ON REVIEW

As my research shows, Hardware Reviews are usually kept very clean and modern looking. If there are colors, they're either blue or green. Being a Review, I want to add a rating and a final verdict. This is common at the end of a longer review article.

Layout

As it's all about the gadget, it starts with a big image of the reviewed piece. The large title makes it clear what it is and how it was tested (Hands On). 2 columns are used for the body text, To spice up the clean writing style of the review, I highlighted some comments from the reviewer in blue in a third column. This adds more personality and a bit of humor. In the end, there is an apparent score and the final verdict as a summary. This is in blue as well and within the third column. The entire column is only used for the blue color.

Typefaces

I used three fonts in different weights. For the Body, I used "Aileron Regular" as an alternative to the widely used Helvetica. It is clean and modern. This works great with Tech. related content.

For both the Main Title and the highlights (in the third column) i used the Typeface "League Spartan." It's bold and works well with the body text. In lower caps, it has a wonderful touch of quirkiness. Works great with the purpose of the third column.

"Montserrat Light" was used for pagination and editor names.
